

Our Commitment to the Community

Dear Friends,

Now more than ever, the mission of the York County Food Bank matters. The impact of the coronavirus has led to record breaking unemployment and economic disruption, making resources scarce for the more than a million Pennsylvanians already facing food insecurity.

As a life-sustaining organization, the Food Bank takes its commitment to the community very seriously. With safe and efficient protocols, we have increased our distribution of food to everyone who needs it. Worrying about having enough to eat should be the last thing on your mind when you are concerned about your health and finances. We are here to help.

Never during the Food Bank's 40-year history has it experienced such a demand for food.

In response to the growing need, we secured an additional facility in East York (1094 Haines Road) and have been holding mass Drive-Thru Distributions from this Emergency Food Hub weekly.

We also host weekly Pop-Up Distributions throughout York County and support our partner agencies as we all strive together for a hunger free community.

Though businesses are beginning to open again, and glimmers of normalcy are returning to everyday life, for many, the economic impacts of this pandemic will be lasting. And though the road ahead is long, we remain committed to ensuring that no one goes hungry in York County.

On behalf of the Food Bank and the people we serve, I thank you.

Success at #GiveLocalYork

On May 1st, nearly 650 donors raised over $74,000 dollars for the York County Food Bank during Give Local York's 24-hour day of giving.

The generosity of our donors exceeded our expectations and we can't thank you enough. With your support, we are creating a Hunger Free York one meal at a time.

York County Community Steps Up

Over the past few months, we have witnessed firsthand how the York community has offered their hands, voices and support to help fulfill our mission to feed people:

When schools closed, volunteers and staff transformed empty parking lots into drive-thru lines for students and their families to receive food.

When we began operations out of our Emergency Food Hub, local restaurant workers, government employees, and staff from companies like MidAtlantic Industrial Equipment, Harley Davidson, Kinsley Properties, York Revolution, and more stepped forward to help sort, pack, and deliver food.

Even as public fear escalated, the volunteers sharing food at our 100+ partner pantry locations revamped their distribution procedures and food supply to serve the increasing number of people in need.

To those determined to serve during one of the most tumultuous times in York County Food Bank's history, we sincerely thank you. We're going to emerge from this pandemic stronger than before because of the fortitude of all the people who stepped up and said, "I'll help."

The Work Ahead

With investments made by thousands of supporters like you, York County Food Bank is strongly positioned to meet today's demands. We have weathered the initial shock of this pandemic and fortified the food assistance system to endure in the weeks ahead.

But we know we have a long road ahead – the pandemic's economic impact will continue to ripple through our community for 12 months, 18 months or more. Need for essential resources will continue to grow and it will take all of us, working together, to continue addressing that need.

York County Food Bank remains adaptive to this rapidly changing environment. In partnership with our generous supporters like you, we will continue to move extraordinary volumes of food into communities facing the threat of hunger and economic insecurity at profound rates. With your support, we remain stalwart in our vision of a hunger free York.

WORKING TOWARDS A HUNGER FREE YORK

New Community Partners

We are working with new partners, such as WellSpan Health, 2-1-1, Rabbit Transit, the National Guard, Operation BBQ Relief, Wellington Homes, and others to help distribute boxes of food. This means food is getting to our neighbors in even more ways!

Thanks to the generous support of many, the Food Bank has been rapidly mobilizing to keep meals on the table for seniors, children and families across our communities.
